REJOICING WITH DR. M'GLYNN

The continuence of the most novel statements. He told the Cobden Club that Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle are as good Free Traders as Sir Robert peel was in 1846 or as Mr. Gladstone now is. He announced that there are now in the United States twice as many, "absolute Free Traders" as in Great Britain. He declared that, in the matter of Free Trade, Americans now regard the English as Conservative, and that America means, not to ext down her tariff by degrees, but to abolish it at once. If Mr. Shearman had taken the trouble to explain on what authority he made these statements or on what basis of fact he could substantiate them, his speech would have been more interesting still.

It is gratifying to hear that Mr. Bayard's friends resented the statement that he was to attend the Colden Club dinner. I have not asked him whether he ever considered the question of going or not. It is certain he was mysted. It s certain that his acceptance of the invitation was announced in the English press. It is cerpain that he did not think it worth while to contradict or deny the story. I do not say that be was bound to, but since he did not, neither he nor his friends are in a position to complain that this uncontradicted story was for a time accepted G. W. S.

Vice-President Stevenson passed East last Thursday, en route from the Pacific Coast. He said to a fay, en route from the Pacific Coast. He said to a fay, en route from the Pacific Coast. He said to a fay, en route from the Pacific Coast. He said to a fay, en route from the most remarkable lines in America, new in construction, but perfect in accommoditions, equipment and management. We were delighted with the service furnished; the buffet cur with its bathroom, burbernished; the current with the great mountain fawirch with the great mountain fanges, the Rockles and the Cascades, in daylight, on a track that seemed as solid as the carth, and the entire party commented upon the absence of dust. We enjoyed every moment of the trip, and could tell enough to fill columns of the wonders of the mighty Northwest, with its mines, farms, ranges, forests, mountains, rivers and lakes. It is a region destined to lave large influence in the National growth and prosperity, and the Great Northern is a potent actor in promoting its development. The road is a marvel of engineering skill, and it deserves will of the people, for it was constructed without all or subsidy from the Government."

of Free Trade, Americans now regard the English | HIS OLD PARISHIONERS CHEER HIM UPROARI-

If you had seen the Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn standing on the platform in Chickering Hall seven years ago advocating the candidacy of Henry George for Mayor of New-York, with the threat of excommunication banging over his head if he dared to do so, and then had seen him last evently on the platform of the big pavilion in Washington Park praising Pope Leo XIII for his plety and learning, as well as for his advanced and liberal ideas, you would not wonder at the quiet smile of triumph which played upon the face of the expansion. face of the ex-pastor of St. Stephen's. It had been more than six months since he spoke to the members of the Anti-Poverty Society, and a great many things have happened since then.

He is once more a priest in good standing, with all his faculties restored and with the parting benediction of the Sovereign Pontiff, few months ago, still ringing in his bless you, my son." What wonder his old parish ioners cheered. What wonder the members of the Anti-Poverty Society cheered and cheered again as they saw the man who had fought against such great odds and by whom they had stuck port, present and full of the eloquence of old, with his star once more in the ascendant. It was death only that severed the relations be tween "the Doctor," as he is fondly called, and any one of his adherents. Many of them have died since those stirring days seven years ago when the fight began, but not one of them eve wavered. He made his appearance last evening in Wash ington Park in company with his little nephews and nieces, his sister's children. As he walke along Avenue A toward the park, everybody along Avenue A toward the park, everybody seemed to recognize him. The sidewalks were crowded in that thickly peopled district, for the day's work was done. People made way for him as he passed, and he had a kind word for everybody. The little children clung around his legs and pulled the skirts of his coat and said: "Ah, Dr. McGlynn." "There's Dr. McGlynn." It was a touching sight, and the priest spoke pleasantly o each child and kissed some of them.

When he reached the park Sylvester L. Malone president of the Anti-Poverty Society, met him The big crowds were not yet on hand, but those who were gathered around him and said, "Welcome to you, Father McGlynn, and God bless you.

After a brief address of welcome by John R. Feeney Dr. McGlynn stood up to speak, and never in the palmiest days of the Anti-Poverty Society was he greeted with a heartier outburst of cheering. It was more than a cheer-it was a roar of welcome which echoed over the building and died away upon the waters of the East River. It was renewed when a man shouted "Three cheers for Monsignor Satolli," and renewed with redoubled wigor when another man shouted "Three cheers for Bishop Moore, of Florida!" This is the bishop who invited Dr. McGlynn to visit his diocese and speak in it. He spent six weeks there. This is some of what Father McGlynn said when he got a chance to be heard:

I have addressed myself to you so often and at such I have addressed myself to you so often and at such great length of occasions like this and on many other occasions; on days of religious solemnity; on occasions of rejorcing and innocent social merrymaking; in what seemed to us crises of importance, of gravest importance to my fortunes, and you were good enough to associate yourself with me to the extent of saying that my fortunes were your fortunes. (Applause.) It is but the simple truth for me to say that I am now embarrassed by the warmth of joye and the circumstances which give to it possible. for me to say that I am now emearassed by the warmen of love and the circumstances which give to it peculiar point and flavor. I now for the first see many of you since the very notable change in my fortunes. It was then that, to the curprise no doubt of many of you, you then that, to the surprise no doubt of many of you, you were gladdened on the eve of that blessed Christmas Day with the tidings that the priest to whom you had adhered with unbounded confidence and with affection unparalleled had made it clear to those who had the best right to (Renewed cheering.) made an unreserved statement of these doctrines and su mitted that statement to the Apostolic Deregate, and that statement was carefully examined, not merely by him, but at his request by four learned theologians of the Univer-sity at Washington, and they decided that there was nothing whatever in these doctrines contrary in any respect to the teaching of the Catholic church. (Loud appliause.) The Archbishop of New-York (hisses) said if only retracted these very doctrines, no other cause of uspension would remain.

The letters signed and sealed by the Apostolic Delegate commended me to the courtesy of all the lishops if the United States, that I might minister wherever I went the United States, that I might minister wherever I was at God's hely altar. It was my earnest desire to say mass publicly on Christmas Day. The venerable pastor of Sts. Peter and Paul's Church in Brooklyn (cheers for Father Malone) went with the letters of the Apostolic Delegate to the Bishop of Brooklyn to request his official sanction that I might say mass in a city in which had spint the last five or six years. The Bishop of Brooklyn declined to allow me to say mass publicly, but arranged that I should say mass in strict seclusion, in absolute privacy in the college chapel. (Cries of "shame.") Dr. McGlynn continued to dwell feelingly on the refusal of Bishop McDonnell, and contrasted it with the generous action of Bishop Moore, of Florida, who gave him the freedom of his diocese to preach and say mass and lecture whenever liked. He then referred to his visit to Rome, and spoke of the cordial reception given him by th Sovereign Pontiff. He continued:

I had one long and very interesting audience with the Cardinal Prefect of the Propaganda, and a very long and altegether delightful and most happy audience with our Holy Father, the Pope. The Holy Father was most eager to please me and most anxious that I should leav cases to please me and most analous that I should read the Rome satisfied. He asked me in so many words "Are you satisfied!" and I said "Yes. Holy father, and I thank you for it, and I ask you to bleas me," and he isted his hards lovingly upon my head and blessed me and pronounced in the ritual of the Church a most cordial beautiful. (A voice: "Three cheers for the Pope." Loud cheering.) The Hely Father had seen a letter to me from Mousigner Satelli, which I showed his Secretary of State It was addressed to me on May 4, before my departure for Rome. He ends the letter by most affectionately wishing me "A happy journey and a more hardening." isting me "A happy journey and a more happy return."

(Great applause.)
A distinguished Catholic prelate who is very high in the exteem and confidence of the Apostolic Delegate wrote a tetter to me dated May 22, a few days before I sailed for Europe, in which he said. "The Delegate is pleased with your idea of not taking charge of a parish, but going around freely and preaching and lecturing wherever you may be invited. After your return from Rome you must have full liberty to say mass and exercise your ministry in public everywhere. The Delegate said emphatically that he will insist upon this point. (More ap-

I think I may add parenthetically that that is something of an answer and was intended to be semething of an answer to those that say, or seem to say, that "the case is not settled," that it is "still open," or that it "ought to be opened." (Densive laughters) Under present circumstances I do not want to be restored to St. Stephen's parish, and I am not prepared to accept a parish in this neightorhood, and yet I do not see why I must banish myself either to Montana or to Alabama. You have loved me so well and so long, you have nade such sagrifices for me, tact I will tell you you are asking something that is not good, either for you or for me. If under present circumstances you ask that I shall take either St. Stephen's parish or any other parish in this neighborhood. If you love me do not constrain me against my own best judgment, against the best judgment of that altogether admirable and lovable man, the Apostolic Delegate, to do what would gratify your own affections to present circumstances. I think I may add parenthetically that that is somethin estaton in present circumstances.

It is for the Apostolic Delegate, in his wisdom and produces and justice, to see to it that what he decrea right shall be done. I need not go into details, but the Holy Father showed the most paternal solicitude that Holy Father showed the most paternal solicitude that I brould exercise my ministry publicly, and seemed, after suggesting various alternatives, to wonder why I could not, until I had to tell him frankly that the only reason was they would not let me. (Cries of "Shame.") Now, don't you think the Pope and the Apostolic D legate ought to have soficient influence with the administration of the Catholic Church to get pretty nearly anything they the Catholic Course to get privile pears as assume want! (Prolonged jaughter and cheering.) I do not think I ever heard of a Pope, and I don't expect to hear of this Pope, saying what a certain President is represented as having once said when some-body asked him for something: "Why, my dear sir, I have no influence with this Administration." (Uprearloss laughter and cheering.) That's the end of my speech Good night and God bless you. (Prolonged cheering applause and waving of hats and handkerchiefs.)

AFRAID OF LAW AT MONMOUTH

THE MANAGERS DON'T WANT TO TESTIFY

THEY SEND THE SECRETARY AND SUPERIN TENDENT, WHO SHOW A SURPRISING AMOUNT OF IGNORANCE.

IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE. Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 8 .- James E. Steen, who represents the Township Committee in its fight with the Monmouth Park Association, made an effort to-day to beard the lion in his den. went to Monmouth Park with Supreme Court Com missioner David Harvey, jr., to examine under oath some of the leading officials of the association. He hoped by this means to secure evidence for use to-morrow, when he is to come before Chief Jus-tice Beasley to argue his motion to set aside the writ of certiorari granted upon the application of the Monmouth Park Association when its officers learned that the Township Committee was tired of waiting for the license fee that has never been paid, and would reconsider the resolution granting the license.

The taking of testimony was begun before Comnissioner Harvey at his office in Asbury Park last Thursday. Subpoenes had been issued for a halfdozen of the leading men of Monmouth Park, but only Assistant Secretary Croft appeared. In orde to secure the attendance of some of the others the hearing was continued to-day at the Monmouth Park Hotel. The change of place did no help much. The men whose presence was desired most strongly were as successful as ever in eluding examination. President A. F. Walcott and John A. Morris would not come. They sent Secretary H. G. Crickmore and Superintendent Melvin R. Keuren to represent the association. They must have known what they were about in sending Sec-retary Crickmore, for the latter revealed practically nothing. He showed the most surprising ignorance of the commonest details of the workings of Monmouth Park. When it came to the matter of the license which was secured in such haste, even before the law making racing possible was properly filed, Secretary Crickmore's innocence was shown in its fullest development. He did not know anything about any authority for the ap-plication for a license, or the arrangements for the payment of the license fee, or the suit for certiorari. Nor did he know if he had any records oncerning any of these matters, although he said it was his duty as secretary of the association to keep the minutes of business transacted.

The secretary was getting along swimmingly in his discourse on what he didn't know about Monmouth Park, and his counsel, William H Vredenburgh, watched the proceedings with a look of evident satisfaction on his face. Mr. Crickmore made one break, however, in his zeal to prove his ignorance of Monmouth Park affairs, and Mr. Vredenburgh was on the alert at once. Mr. Crick more said that so far as he knew there were no directors of the Monmouth Park Association, and he did not know that there had ever been any regular election of officers. Mr. Vredenburgh was quick to see that such testimony would simply prove that the Monmouth Park Association had no legal existence. He promptly interrupted the examination long enough to get Mr. Crickmore to reveal the fact that he did know that there was in Executive Committee representing the ciation. The committee, he said, was composed of Dwyer and Lucien O. Appleby. When asked about this committee's relations to the various proceedings connected with the matter of the racing license, he relapsed into his original ignorance.

He was excused, and Superintendent Van Keuren was called, Mr. Van Keuren was almost as good a representative for the association as Mr. Crickmore. The only point of interest in his testimony was his acknowledgment of having served the writ of certiorari upon the several members of the Township Committee, and not, as is the requirement in this State in such a case, upon the township clerk, who is the custodian of the records.

The township's representatives will argue the case before Chief Justice Beasley to-morrow Mr. Steen may at the outset object to the writ on the ground that it was illegally served. It he does so, however, the racetrack people will simply apply at once for another writ.

ENGINEER AND STOKER DISAGREE.

The times were out of joint on board the British Dutchman named Koonick on board the steamer near Liberty Island on Monday Koonick wanted to go ashore, but he said nothing and shoveled coal. David Hamilton, the chief engineer, came down into the stekehold yesterday. Hamilton whistled and the stoker scowled. The engineer may have said som thing which did not please Mr. Koonlek. Anywa the stoker curessed the engineer's face with a coal shovel and Mr. Hamilton now goes about with hi features swathed in bandages. The stoker was put in trons and yesterday he was taken before the British Consul. There will be a further hearing in his case to day.

Koonick says that Hamilton was intoxicated, and that he was flourishing a revolver. Mr. Hamilton says that he had beither gun nor "jng." The captain of the irthington is much hurt at Mr. Koonick's breash Mr. Alschplus. "Its a bloody, blooming ghame," he said. The engineer agreed with him.

It is not necessary that Congress now attempt permanently to solve the financial problem and establish a monetary system for the future. What is now wanted is temporary relief. That Congress can give in three days by two simple acts. First, suspend the silver purchase clause of the Sherman act, second, give National banks the privilege to issue notes to the face value of their bonded security. That done, Congress can take up all winter, if it chooses, in making a thorough investigation of the financial problem in all its bearings.

THE REPUBLICANS MAY BE TRUSTED.

THE REPUBLICANS MAY BE TRUSTED.

From The Detroit Tribune.

The Republican party will not share in the responsibility for what is done or not done, but it may be counted upon to throw its weight with the sounder faction of the Democracy. The best preparation the party can make for the next National campaign is clean-cut, decisive action at every point at which the two elements of the Democracy clash.

MR. CLEVELAND'S RESPONSIBILITY.

From The Boston Journal.

A great responsibility rests upon Mr. Cleveland.
He is believed to be more conservative and more sagacious than the party leaders in Congress. In any efforts which he may make to improve the currency he will have the support of an overwhelming majority of Republican members of Congress against the majority of his own party. He is in a position to appreciate better than the headstrong Democratic leaders in the House what reckless dealing with the tariff means to the industrial and business interests of the country. He will justly be held accountable for legislation, for it is not likely that any currency or tariff bill could be passed over his veto. He has a great opportunity, if he uses it wisely, and puts patriotism above party.

THE TARIFF UNCERTAINTY SHOULD END.

From The Washington Star.

Congress should not hesitate. It should declare itself as to what it is going to do about the tariff at the carliest possible moment, and by this course either relieve the paintal and dangerous suspense or else give business men an opportunity to so readjust themselves as to fit new conditions. TROUBLE WITH THE SILVER MEN AHEAD.

From The Providence Journal.

The so-called silver element is large enough and determined enough to make a great deal of trouble; and while it cares little or nothing for the Sherman law, it must be expected to wage a bitter right against its repeal unless accompanied by a law more agreeable to its ideas. In fact, the real question now before Congress is not so much whether the present law shall be repealed, but what kind of a law shall be put in its place. That is not a question which is likely to be settled very easily or promptly.

WHERE CONSERVATISM IS NEEDED.

WHERE CONSERVATISM IS NEEDED.

From The Philadelphia Inquirer.

If the tariff question is to be forced into prominence the condition of affairs teaches that it should be done in a most conservative way. Nothing is so sensitive as capital. The mills are closing because dealers refuse to give large orders, and collections are hard to make. They must pursue a hand-to-mouth policy until the legislation to be enacted is clearly defined and money is again easy. Anything like "a tariff for revenue only," which is the general acceptation of the meaning of Free Trade, must inevitably further paralyze industry.

PEACE AT LAST AMONG THE MANAGERS.

THE WOMEN FROM THE PLAISANCE HORRIFIED BY THE WRANGLE OF THEIR CHRISTIAN SISTERS.

Chicago, Aug. 8 .- While the Board of Lady Managerof the World's Fair was in the midst of a spirited wrangle this afternoon a delegation of women from the Midway Platsance walked in. They had received a special invitation to visit the Women's Building and the meeting of the board, that they might be benefited by the society of civilized Women and see what wonders their civilized sisters had performed. The visiting heathens were Persians, Arabians and Greeks, and as they entered the room where the lady managers were in session the din and confusion that prevailed were startling in the extreme. For a moment the ened. The strange attires soon attracted the at-tention of the members of the board, and altercation was onicted down. Mrs. Palmer called for them to come upon the platform, and there presented them in a body to the as-sembled women of civilized society. After remaining for a few minutes they were sent under escort through the building. Scarcely had they gone when the wrangling was renewed. After a three hours' fight Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker made a short, brisk talk. Though bowed with the weight of three-score and ten years, she was full of vigor, and spoke to the point. As a result, the matter referring to the disagreeable light of the last three days was ordered xpunged from the records, and resolutions were adopted to prevent the subject from again being brought into the sessions of the board.

The National Commission is encountering some trouble in securing a jury of awards on the plane exhibit. The names of George Steck, of New-York, and Dr. F. Zeigtieki, of Blinois, as members of the jury came up for confirmation to-day. no objection to Zeigfield, but H. C. Parker, of Missouri, opposed the confirmation of steck on the ground that he was interested in a piano exhibit at the Fair. Farker said that he had submitted the name of Charles Farrier said that he had submitted the hame of charles Kunkle, of St. Louis, before Steck's name had been proposed, and that the committee had never consid-ered it, although Kunkle had received the indorse-ment of Governor Stone, ex-Governor Francis and others. So much feeling was developed that action on the matter was postponed.

To-morrow will be an important day. The ginia State Building will be dedicated: the Py will march down the Midway Plaisance and be meeting in Festival Hall, and there will be features of unusual interest.

The Hou. Clark Wallace, M. P., Minister of Cus-oms for the Dominion of Canada, is a visitor at he Fair. Under the guidance of Commissioner Clarke ic is in-posting the Canadian exhibits.

AT THE TEMPERANCE CAMP-MEETING.

WORK OF JOHN N. STEARNS, THE SECRETARY AN LEADING SPIRIT OF THE SOCIETY.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 6 (special).-The ing spirit of the camp-meeting here is John 5. Steams, the corresponding secretary and publishing agent of the society. Mr. Steams has grown gray in the service, but is as energetic and James R. O'Beirne, who delivered an address on "The May 24, 1829. He joined the Cold Water Army Situation of the Day," followed by John H. Jewell, in 1830, the Cadets of Temperance in 1840, and state organizer of the Republican State League, who | the Band of Hope in 1842. He was initiated into The meeting adjourned until September 5 at 8 p. m. 1848, and has kept up his connection with that Patriarch of New-York and Most Worthy Patriarch of the National Division of North America. In 1866 he united with Pioneer Lodge, of the Order of Good Templars, of New York, and has been a delegate to every session of the Grand Lodge 1367. He has also been delegate to eleven sessions of the Right Wortby Grand Lodge of America. He is also a member of Mosaic Temple of Honor, and was for several years Most Worthy Templar of the Supreme Council of North America. Mr. Stearns was president of the New-York State Temperance Society for the years 1875-76, and president of the State Constitutional Amendment Association for eight successive years. He has been a clerk of Kings County, and was for some years a member of the Brooklyn Board of Education. He interests himself in Sunday-school work in the Seventeenth Ward, Brooklyn, where he has lived for the last thirty years, Since 1860 he has been the corresponding secretary of the National Temperance Society. In years. Since 15th and 15th addition to managing the entire business of the society and its publication home at No. 58 Readest, he has himself edited or written books that have had a total circulation of 300,000 copies.

Mr. Stearris is a keen Scotchman, of brusque, businessilke manner. He is far sighted, intellectual and thoroughly practical. He says he is convinced that the evils of the liquor traffic can never be fully exterminated without the aid of good, sound temperance literature. He has devoted his life to furnishing this.

STABBED OVER A GAME OF CARDS. Charles McIntyre, eighteen years old, is in a critical ndition at his home in Young st., Blissville, Long Island, as the result of a stab wound inflicted on Mon-day night over a game of cards. It is asserted that samuel Smith, who lives in the house adjoining Me-intyre's, wielded the knife. Dr. Morrison, who was attending McIntyre, fears that death will ensue. The kalle was plunged twice hato the stomach and once into the right arm. Smith has not yet been arrested.

DEEP REA DIVING

DEEP SEA DIVING.

From The Daily Saratogian.

The question of raising the Victoria—sunk by collision with the Camperdown in seventy fathoms (42) feet) of water—has been discussed in British naval circles, but the Salvage Association of Great Britain maist that the feat is impossible.

A man who has had twenty years' experience says the idea of raising the Victoria or anything in seventy fathoms of water is preposterous. Nothing that lives can go down that depth. With the best appliances known a diver would be dead long before he could get down that far.

The deepest work this company ever did was in 20 fathoms of water (120 feet), and then the men could only work fifteen or twenty minutes and be laif dead when they came up, and weeks before they would be well again. This was on the Orestey would be well again. This was on the Orestey would be well again. This was on the Orestey more than the property worked a year. The pressure at seventy fathoms would crush anything not solid wood or iron; a diver would be dead long before he reached the depth.

The greatest depth ever reached by a diver was twenty-five fathoms, and this cost him his life it was done to reach a vessel sunk off the Canary Islands with $500,000 in Spanish gold, $400,000 of which was recovered.

The Salvage Association of Great Britain is now looking for a man who will go down twenty-three fathoms, but so far is unable to find one, though a liberal percentage of $6,000 left in a wrecked vessel is offered as a reward.

SHRIMPS

From The Topeka Capital.

Any one who can still remember his introduction to shrimps will recall that first struggle between duty and inclination; for it is obviously one's duty to do something when a heaped-up plate of the creatures is set before him. If you happen to have come from Kansas, most likely all you can think of will be a fat grasshopper with not even whags to redeem his likeness to a worm. You may pick him up gingerly, and glance furtively around to see what your neighbors are doing with his kind. If by this time you have convinced yourself that he is moving his legs, probably the heap will be peremptorily ordered away. Some days after, when it has been discovered that the greatest danger is not that he will be served too much alive but too much dead, you may stiffe all recollections of putting angleworms on a hook and such like appetizing reflections and sundmon up courage to dissect him-passably well. Finding that he is good, it is only a question of time when you will be able to pull off his outer sheath with the case and delicacy of a practised San Franciscan. From The Topeka Capital.
